Minister sees joined-up care in action

A NEW APPROACH: local health managers and councillors meet the minister at the new Eltham Community Hospital

PIONEERING work in Greenwich which joins up health and social care was shown to the new Community and Social Care Minister, Alistair Burt MP last week.

He paid a visit to find out more about the way the new approach to services is improving the lives of local residents. He met people who have benefited, and heard about how it had improved the quality of their lives.

He chose Greenwich as it is one of 14 'pioneers' selected by the government two years ago as part of its development

by Dick Townsend-Smith

of integrated health and social care. Greenwich and other pioneers are playing a leading role in helping share best practice nationally.

The minister went to the new Eltham Community Hospital, which opened to its first patients earlier this year. The two intermediate care wards play a vital role in helping patients make the transition from hospital to home and will enable people needing some extra care to be looked after in a community setting, reducing the level of admissions to hospital. These wards are the first in a wide range of primary and community care services that will be provided from this new state-of-the-art facility.

The minister also met with councillors John Fahy, David Gardner and Mark Elliott and social services professionals including Dr Rebecca Rosen, who has been lead GP working on the programme to integrate primary care, community care, social care and the voluntary sector.

Their work has led to fewer unnecessary hospital admissions. In spite of the aging population Greenwich has improved from the worst in the country for emergency admission rates in 2004 to the 9th best. Additionally, fewer people now need long-term care, and discharges for patients over 65 have been speeded up. Mr Burt

Pick up on those who litter as well as dog owners

I READ edition 348 of GT (P2, dog owners reminded of responsibilities) with interest. I am a dog owner and agree that all owners should clear up after their pets. However, I do wish that the same emphasis could be given to littering, particularly of food waste, which encourages rats and foxes. The quantity of litter from people picnicking in local parks is also a serious concern.

Carolyn Watkins, Blackheath

● A Council spokesperson said: "Thanks for taking the time to write to GT. We agree that residents can help us to ensure our parks and open spaces remain a great place for families to visit, by either placing their litter in the public bins provided, or by taking their litter home with them. Indeed, anyone caught dropping litter in the borough, could face a fine of £75. Our Park wardens regularly ensure that any rubbish is removed and disposed of appropriately, but this increases the pressure on Council budgets at a time when funding for essential services is being cut. If you would like to report a problem with litter to the Council please do so at www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk/report"

Amenities for Abbey Wood

WITH Crossrail well underway and Abbey Wood being the termination station, could you tell us what is being done to turn Abbey Wood into a more attractive area? I am aware there is a hotel being built, but what other amenities are going to be introduced? The area surrounding Abbey Wood station isn't exactly a hub of entertainment and excitement - unless one considers fast-food, bookies, and mini-marts exciting or entertaining. Of course, Lesness Abbey is glorious, and I cannot fault the ancient beauty there, but are there any plans underway for regenerating the immediate surrounding area of the new station?

Kerry Brady, Abbey Wood

● A council spokesperson said: "Thank you for your letter. The council is working to make a series of improvements to the Abbey Wood area in preparation for the opening of the new Crossrail services in 2018. This includes a world class design for the new rail station at Abbey Wood and a £6m programme (with £2.2m from Transport for London) to enhance the highway, bus stops and entry points immediately adjacent to the station. Delivery of a "Housing Zone" to the north of the station will support and accelerate the delivery of new homes, 45 per cent of which will be affordable. The overall result will not only be an increase in high quality homes for local people but also a significant improvement in the appearance of the area along Harrow Manor Way - due for completion in the next 2-3 years. A £300,000 High Street Improvement programme for Wilton Road will deliver physical improvements to shops on the street and a new vision for the area. This project will start imminently and both local traders and interested residents will be invited to comment and help shape proposals as they emerge. The council is in discussions with the developer in regards to providing a new community library for the area."

Tale of twinned cities

Royal borough celebrates 50- year link

FIRM FRIENDS: the Mayor Cllr Norman Adams and Maribor's Mayor, Mr Andrej Fištravec plant the vine in Well Hall Pleasaunce, left, royal borough and members of the delegation get behind the flag of Slovenia

THE ROYAL borough marked a 50-year friendship with the Slovenian town of Maribor last week. Delegates from Maribor, including Mayor, Mr Andrej Fištravec visited the royal borough on June 2 to visit some of its top tourist spots including Eltham's Tudor Barn and Cutty Sark Gardens, Greenwich.

The Slovenian guests also met with the royal borough's new Mayor, Cllr Norman Adams and other guests to further strengthen the links between the twinned areas.

The visit of Maribor's delegates was marked at Well Hall Pleasaunce with the unveiling of a plaque and the planting a cutting from one of the oldest vines in the world from the Slovenian town. The Mayor, Cllr Adams said: "We thank you for this special gift, and look forward to continuing our town twinning relationship for years to come." Among the delegation was Slovenian Soprano singer Nika Gori, who is currently studying at the Royal College of Music.

Later in the day the guests visited Greenwich and Cutty Sark Gardens, where they quite literally gave locals a taste of Maribor - by setting up a marquee and offering members of the public free samples of authentic Slovenian food and wine.

The royal borough has a long history of town twinning links with different countries, creating a friendship agreement for co-operation. It is twinned with two other areas namely Reinickendorf in Germany and Tema in Ghana.

The Royal Greenwich Town Twinning Association was set up in 1968, helping to maintain contacts and links with the twinned towns. Association member Cllr John Fahy added: "I'm delighted to join the Mayor at this important event. Building relations with other cities and Maribor is a key objective of the royal borough. It is now more about sharing ideas and experiences to benefit both communities, create a sense of understanding by young people and work with partners to support the work in a range of ways."

● Now locals can pay a return visit to Maribor thanks to a new two-hour airline service running June to October from Southend Airport.

GREENWICH

Reservations made

by Dan Stephens

UP to 400 local people are due to benefit from new job opportunities following the launch of a recruitment and apprenticeship campaign by the Royal Borough of Greenwich and luxury hotel operator the Arora Group.

The Arora Group's brand new luxury hotel, the InterContinental London – The 02, is set to be completed by the end of the year and its partnership with Greenwich Local Labour and Business - the council's local employment service - will see a commitment to provide at least 40 per cent of all jobs within the hotel to royal borough residents on the GLLaB scheme.

Recruitment and training will begin in the coming months, with recruits able to complete apprenticeship schemes delivered by GLLaB and their training delivery partners JACE.

Successful apprentices will have opportunities to work in management and operations positions in all departments across the new hotel's hospitality sector.

Cllr Denise Hyland leader of the royal borough opened the recruitment launch on June 3.

She said: "I'm proud of the relationship we've built with Arora. Incredible progress has been made and we are delighted that London's next luxury hotel is in Greenwich.

"It is a key priority for the council to maximise potential opportunities for local people and I am hopeful that the majority of the 400 new jobs will go to these young residents. As a council, our vision is that local people benefit from these kinds of developments.

"We also hope that the new hotel will play a role bringing more tourists to the royal borough and further contribute to the tourism and arts industry, which is already worth £1.1bn to the local economy."

New hotel books staff in recruitment fair

A GREAT RECEPTION: hotel managers and recruitment staff welcome potential staff, top right, apprentices Filmon Tesfalam and Olivia Herrera, right a computer graphic of the hotel

Olivia Herrera, attended the recruitment launch and is hoping to find work in customer services in the future. She told GT: "It was amazing. The atmosphere was brilliant and everyone was so welcoming. It was enlightening and being there opened my eyes to what GLLaB could provide in the future. I got to speak to an inspiring apprentice currently working for Arora, who helped me see what I could achieve."

Surinder Arora, CEO and co-founder of the Arora Group, said: "At Arora, we are opening our most ambitious leisure and business hotel yet, with London's largest new event space, so it's vital we find the right people. Working with the council to secure talent from the local community was a natural choice for us."

£3,000 fine for smuggled vodka

An off-licence owner from Plumstead was caught selling bottles of vodka that had been smuggled into the country without any excise duty being paid.

Tipen Siwa from the DJ off-licence in Brewery Road was fined a total of £3,000, and ordered to pay costs of £1,830 and a victim surcharge of £120. He pleaded guilty to all the charges brought by the Royal Borough of Greenwich when he appeared before magistrates at Bexley.

The court heard that two trading standards officers had visited the off-licence to give advice on how to avoid selling alcohol to underage youths. They discovered 37 bottles of Smirnoff on sale that had counterfeit labels on them and a further 82 bottles in a store room. Siwa said that his wife had bought the alcohol and he had not been aware whether or not the duty had been paid.

The court also ordered that the illegal goods that had been seized should be forfeited. Cllr Jackie Smith, the council's cabinet member for community safety and environment, said: "Selling alcohol illegally is a serious matter. It risks the health of our residents where industrial alcohol could be present and disadvantages other business in the borough. We will not hesitate to prosecute where we find the law is being broken."

● Anyone who knows or suspects that premises are selling alcohol or tobacco illegally can report it to Greenwich Trading Standards on 020 8921 8223 or email tradingstandards@royalgreenwich.gov.uk

Chance to discover Magna Carta's Greenwich connections

ON Sunday (June 14) it will be exactly 800 years since one of the world's most important documents was signed.

The Magna Carta was signed with the seal of King John on the banks of the River Thames at Runnymede near Windsor, witnessed by 25 barons. They included Geoffrey de Saye, then the Lord of West Greenwich.

This local connection has given the royal borough a unique opportunity to mark the anniversary

The Magna Carta, which means 'Great Charter', set out in law a list of rights, and King John agreed to abide by them. They included a declaration that all 'free men' had the right to justice and a fair trial – a founding principle of English law that is still in force today.

The document also formed the cornerstone of the idea of liberty and law, both in England and across the world. It inspired the US Declaration of Independence, the European Convention on Human Rights and the Universal Declaration of Human Rights.

A copy of the original Magna

by Dick Townsend-Smith

Carta will be on show this week at the Greenwich Heritage Centre in Artillery Square, Woolwich. And on Saturday from 12.30pm the Big Screen in General Gordon Square, Woolwich, will show a programme from the British Library all about the Magna Carta. This will be followed at 1pm by Robin Hood – a version of the story about the legendary outlaw who fought the injustices caused by King John.

Cllr Miranda Williams, the council's cabinet member for culture and creative industries, said: "It is great to see so many local events being put on to mark the 800th anniversary of the sealing of Magna Carta – an event of international, national and local significance. I would encourage everyone to get involved in the celebrations. There's something for everyone, providing a fun way to learn about how the Magna Carta came into being and how it paved the way for democracy today as we know it."

To celebrate the 800th anniversary, a copy of the Magna Carta will be on display at Greenwich Heritage Centre and children and their families can have a go at making their own scroll at a free drop-in session on Saturday (June 13) at the centre between 10am and noon.

The activities are suitable children aged four and over, but younger children are welcome to join in with the help of their families. There is no need to book. Parents and carers are responsible for supervising their children at all times. To find out more go to www.greenwichheritage.org or call 020 8854 2452.

On Sunday (June 14) the Greenwich Society is holding a Magna Carta summer party at the University of Greenwich Library, Department of Architecture & Landscape building in Stockwell Street, from 12.30-4.30pm. There will be bell ringing, guest speakers and a fork buffet lunch. Tickets are £25 for members and £30 for non-members. Child tickets for under-12s are £10. To book, contact Jonathan Chandler by email at secretary@greenwichsociety.org.uk To find out more go to www.greenwichsociety.co.uk/Events said: "Greenwich Coordinated Care is leading the way in joining up health and social care. It's great to meet the patients and families who are benefiting from this integrated approach, as well as the hardworking staff who are making it happen. This is the future for the health service."

Co-ordinated care

Cllr David Gardner, the council's cabinet member for health and adult social care, said: "Greenwich is proud to be a pioneer in the integration of health and social care. By creating a joined-up approach and planning services around the needs of the individual, we are making a real difference to the lives of local people."

One of the local residents who met the minister was Aaron Kerr, 31, from Woolwich.

He told GT "Things have got so much better since I started working with Jo, my care navigator. I had my leg amputated last summer and have had other health problems, but Jo has been brilliant – she makes sure I get to all my appointments, and also makes sure that all the different services know what each of them is doing to help me improve my situation.

"Jo understands that my main aim is to regain my independence. With her support I'm now involved in the Men in Sheds project, which is helping me build my confidence."

School Building wins architecture award

by Dick Townsend-Smith

JOHN Roan's new buildings have been given a top award by the Royal Institute of British Architects.

It was presented to headteacher Des Malone and architects John McAslan and Partners at a ceremony at the National Theatre in London. The brand new three-storey building provides modern flexible educational environment, while the newly refurbished Maze Hill site was voted "a sympathetic and great amalgamation of old and new". Mr Malone said: "We are honoured and delighted to receive such recognition for our new school buildings. It's a testament to the commitment of a whole team of people involved in the project. Credit must go to the architects, builders, staff, governors, foundation trustees, parents and carers and of course our students for their vision, commitment and support of the project over the last couple of years."

MODERN: pupils enjoy their new space, left, headteacher Des Malone and Hannah Lawson from architects John McAslan and Partners receive the RIBA award

Students reach for the stars

NINE media students from The John Roan School on Maze Hill worked with the National Maritime Museum and the Ravensbourne college to produce a mobile phone app about the museum's recent award-winning 'Ships, Clocks and Stars' exhibition.

The 17-year-olds from Year 12 helped develop the interactive app for the education part of the museum's website, which involved using images, film and sound. Art teacher Juliet Overton said: "It was part of the coursework for an AS-level in media studies. We were guided by Ravensbourne, and used the school's computers – which could lead the students on to other careers. The museum wanted an educational resource and we went to the exhibition and discussed the students' ideas for a new augmented reality platform, and learned how it worked technically." Katherine McAlpine, the museum's public programmes producer, said: "We used an app and got the students to design posters for the exhibition, using images and content. The final product produced posts using an iPad or smartphone and showed the presentations made by the students, such as a video explaining longitude and a 3D treasure chest. "I worked with the students and I was really blown away by the quality of what they produced. It was just amazing to see how their hard work had come together, it looked really professional."

Food for thought

by Dan Stephens

ACCLAIMED chef Raymond Blanc OBE will be one of 10 speakers at Charlton Manor Primary School's annual Food in the Curriculum conference on Friday (June 12).

Now in its fifth year, the food conference is open to local people with an interest in food education and covers a huge range of topics aimed at promoting a healthy diet, food-growing and cooking in school curriculums.

There will be workshops and presentations with guest speakers including entrepreneur and musician Levi Roots.

The royal borough has earned a strong reputation for its work with schools to promote healthy eating, while Charlton Manor's committed approach has enabled it to become one of just two schools in the capital to win the acclaimed London Healthy Schools gold award.

Headteacher Tim Baker told GT: "We hold the conference to inspire other schools to become food-growing and cooking schools. Schools, colleges and various organisations will be attending from all over the country and as well as the speakers there will be practical demonstrations linking cooking to maths, English, geography and other subjects.

"The idea is to embed real cooking skills in children throughout the curriculum. It's a vital life skill, like learning maths and writing in practical, engaging ways. For example, we don't get fit by reading about it, but by doing it."

Stable doors open to public at riding centre

Royal Greenwich and Hadlow College are throwing open the doors of the exciting Royal Borough of Greenwich Equestrian Skills and Riding Centre at Shooters Hill this Saturday (June 13) – in a community open day which will showcase all that the centre offers. The Open Day offers the ideal opportunity for anyone thinking about further education options, or a career working with horses, to come and see the first class facilities on offer. The Equestrian Centre was established after the London 2012 Olympics as a key legacy project in the borough and to provide residents with the chance to access training and qualifications in the equestrian sector. Residents can study a number of courses at the Centre leaving with excellent chances of getting a job in the equestrian industry, from working as a groom to working in equine welfare and therapy. A riding centre has also been set up at the Centre, with discounted rates for local residents who want to try out riding through a bursary scheme and also through our Adult Education Programme. The Open Day will showcase all aspects of the centre and visitors – who need to pre-book tours – will be able to see riding displays, various demonstrations and get the chance to meet the horses. Councillor Sizwe James,

Royal Borough of Greenwich Cabinet Member for Business and Employment said: "Anyone in the borough considering their further education options, or who are looking to train in the equine sector really should come along and see what's on offer – it could open a whole new career path!"

● The Open Day will run from 10:00am – 4:00pm on Saturday 13 June

● To pre-book a tour and to meet the horses go to www.hadlow.ac.uk/meetbonnie or call 0208 331 3410

● The Equestrian Centre is at 341, Shooters Hill Road, Shooters Hill, London DA16 3RP

New leisure centre and library opening

THE Arches Leisure Centre will be closing on June 12 and the brand new Greenwich Centre will be opening on June 13. The Council's Greenwich Centre will replace leisure facilities at Arches and East Greenwich Library when the new building opens this summer. The new leisure centre will be run by GLL with brand new facilities that improve the offer currently provided at the Arches centre. The centre will have a new six-lane main pool and shallower learner pool, both with double shallow ends to maximise the pool space for people learning to swim. The centre will also have two studios and a state of the art gym with more than 100 pieces of equipment and a free weights area. The new library will also be run by GLL and is significantly bigger than the existing building at East Greenwich. It will be the third largest in the borough and will have longer opening hours. It will have significantly more books and new computers for users. It's been designed as a 'digital hub' to include new PCs and a children's area with dedicated tablets for children to use. Staff will be on hand to help customers make the most of the new IT suite, where they will find it easy and more efficient to access council services online. Existing Arches Leisure Centre memberships and programme will be transferred to the brand new facility.

A direct way to pay

The royal borough is reminding residents that paying council housing charges can be cheap, easy and less stressful with direct debit.

It is important to arrange to pay your bills - including rent - immediately after you receive your benefit payments. Arranging direct debit payments means you can be sure that important bills are paid on time all the time.

The council offers four instalment dates each month, on the 7th, 14th, 22nd and 28th days of the month, and you will be notified in advance of the amount collected from your bank account each month.

You can even have a chance of winning £1,000 worth of vouchers by switching to direct debit. Sign up to pay your housing charges by direct debit before October 30 and you could win £1,000 worth of shopping vouchers. Tenants currently paying housing charges by direct debit will be automatically entered.

● You can set up your direct debit payments using our online form now at www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk/housingpayments or call the council Housing Direct Debit team on 020 8921 3201 and arrange to pay by direct debit over the phone. You will need a UK bank account to set up a direct debit.

ROYAL borough of

to get Greenwich blooming

by Dan Stephens

THERE is still time to enter this year's Greenwich in Bloom competition and show off the best your garden has to offer this summer.

Residents can show off their gardens, window boxes and hanging baskets as part of the royal borough's annual competition.

There are four categories to enter this year, which will all be assessed by independent judges.

Category 1 is for front garden with colourful summer plants. Judges will be looking for creative use of annual bedding plants as well as shrubs to give a colourful summer display.

Category 2 is for front garden with the best landscape design and creative use of plants. Judges will be looking for the best use of plants to provide colour throughout the year, and creative use of trees and shrubs to give height and interesting focal points.

Category 3 is for back garden with creative use of colour and plants. In this case judges will be looking for the best use of plants to provide colour throughout the year, and creative use of trees and shrubs to give height and interesting focal points.

Lastly category 4 for colourful window boxes and hanging baskets where judges will be looking for well-filled baskets or window boxes with plenty of colour and variety of plants.

There will be prizes for winners and a shield for the overall winner of each category, presented by the Mayor.

Cllr Jackie Smith, the council's cabinet member for community safety and environment said: "We have seen so many brilliant Greenwich in Bloom entries from our local residents in the last few years and I'm sure this year's gardens will be no different. There are a range of categories to enter - from front gardens to window boxes - so I'm sure that local people from across the community will be able to show off their garden skills and help get Greenwich blooming this summer."

● Those interested in entering can complete an online form at www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk/inbloom. Entry forms must arrive no later than Friday 12 June.

Disability Week art show

The artists will help staff the exhibition, which will be in the foyer each day from 9am to 5pm.

NEARLY 200 local firms are benefiting from becoming more 'tech savvy' – and taking advantage of new media to boost their business and create new jobs. It's the impressive results of an e-business support package, offered by the council in partnership with Woolwich-based South East Enterprise. Greenwich Time reports...

THE three-year E-Business Support Programme was launched in May last year to provide a rolling series of training workshops for businesses, plus one-to-one sessions with e-business advisers from South East Enterprise (SEE).

As a result businesses have used new technology to improve operations, productivity and marketing through social media resulting in expansion and the creation of new jobs.

So far, nine websites have been built and another 50 businesses are being lined up to have their sites either built or rebuilt.

The initiative has already led to 20 new jobs being created by businesses that have undergone the programme and expanded as a result. They are all full-time jobs, and include two in health and well-being and 15 in cleaning, spread between four different companies. In one growing company alone, three new people were taken on – a sales person, a driver and an administrator.

Subjects covered by the programme include best practice in social media, search engine optimisation, which entails improved positioning of a website to make it easier to find, web design, e-commerce and cloud-based systems.

There is a strong partnership with students and graduates from Greenwich University and Ravensbourne College who use their skills to work directly with local businesses.

Tony Goldstein, SEE's managing director, said: "The E-Business programme is really having an impact, especially on retail businesses in the borough. As firms embrace the digital side of business they become better able to engage with their customers."

"So retailers using social media can tell their customers about offers and what they are doing. Meanwhile, customers following on social media can keep up-to-date with what their local retailers are doing on their high street. This is reflecting the changing face of the local high street business and helping to make 'shop local' really meaningful by tailoring offers directly to the local market place."

He stressed: "It's fair to say that many firms that have been through our programme are doing more business, which has led to more jobs. And the programme is not just about training, it's more about one-to-one support."

Cllr Sizwe James, the council's cabinet member for business, employment and skills, said: "New media and internet technology is not just for larger firms, or those that are technology-based. It is just as valuable to more ordinary local business, particularly 'one-man bands' and those that are home-based. I would encourage everyone to check out whether South East Enterprise's programme can help them grow and prosper."

● For more information, go to SEE's website at www.seenterprise.co.uk

ONE organisation benefiting significantly from the E-business Support Programme is the Art Hub, a not-for-profit social enterprise supplying studio and gallery facilities for artists.

Its two sites at Charlton and one in Deptford enable 115 artist members to enjoy affordable creative facilities.

Back in 1999 married artists Deborah and Adrian Morris-Thomas began to provide artists with work spaces and a gallery known as Framework Studios. Evolving into the Art Hub, they started to support and promote the work of creative people in many disciplines.

"As a team, we put our emphasis on providing practical, communal areas with extensive facilities for printmaking, textiles, ceramics and carpentry. We also offer workshops and the opportunity to regularly exhibit in our group shows," explained Deborah. "So we were all thrilled when the royal borough and SEE gave members the opportunity to access specialist one to one training and group workshops which they would not otherwise be able to get."

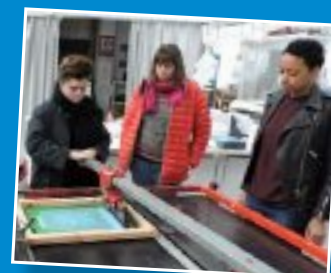

Artists can often be people who find themselves working in isolation and in inadequate conditions. Art Hub gives its members the means to produce highly professional and marketable work. "This e-business programme is very good news because it adds a further important dimension to our organisation by improving the business skills set that individuals need in the contemporary marketplace," added Deborah.

Open for business

IT's not just commercial businesses that can benefit from new media.

Charities as well can put their message across more effectively, and attract new clients.

South East Enterprise has been working with the Mental Health Activity Trust, which provides work for people with mental health problems and gives them support, and runs a charity shop in Delacourt Road, Blackheath.

A Ravensbourne student has been building a bespoke website for them.

Trust director Toni Hale said: "It's fantastic working with SEE and Ravensbourne has been really good. The website is due to go live this week, and we are being shown how to maintain it and keep it up to date.

"The difference it will make for us is that it will put us 'on trend', give us a much more modern appearance, and will encourage more people to come to us."

New links to customers

TIBETAN restaurant-owner Tensin Dakpa was keen to take up the e-business programme to improve operations at Kailash Momo, his restaurant in Woolwich New Road.

Tensin wanted to improve his use of internet technology - from optimising the restaurant's website through to using social media to interact with local people. The aim was to increase the customer base, as well as become part of the local social scene

Mr Dakpa told GT: "I attended the SEE's one-day's training at their offices at the Woolwich Arsenal Gatehouse in Beresford Square on how to use social media. I use social media as a business tool, and SEE has been helping me set up my website.

"I hope that my new experience with social media reaches out to my customers and encourages them to say that they like eating here. I already have more than 200 people looking at my Facebook page. I am really into social media and it is becoming very helpful to promoting my business."

A cleansweep for new technology

ANOTHER local company to benefit is Deep Kleen Ltd a commercial cleaning company offering services which include office cleaning, commercial carpet cleaning, office window cleaning and upholstery.

The business is based in Greenwich and has been established for 31 years, employs 150 people and is growing.

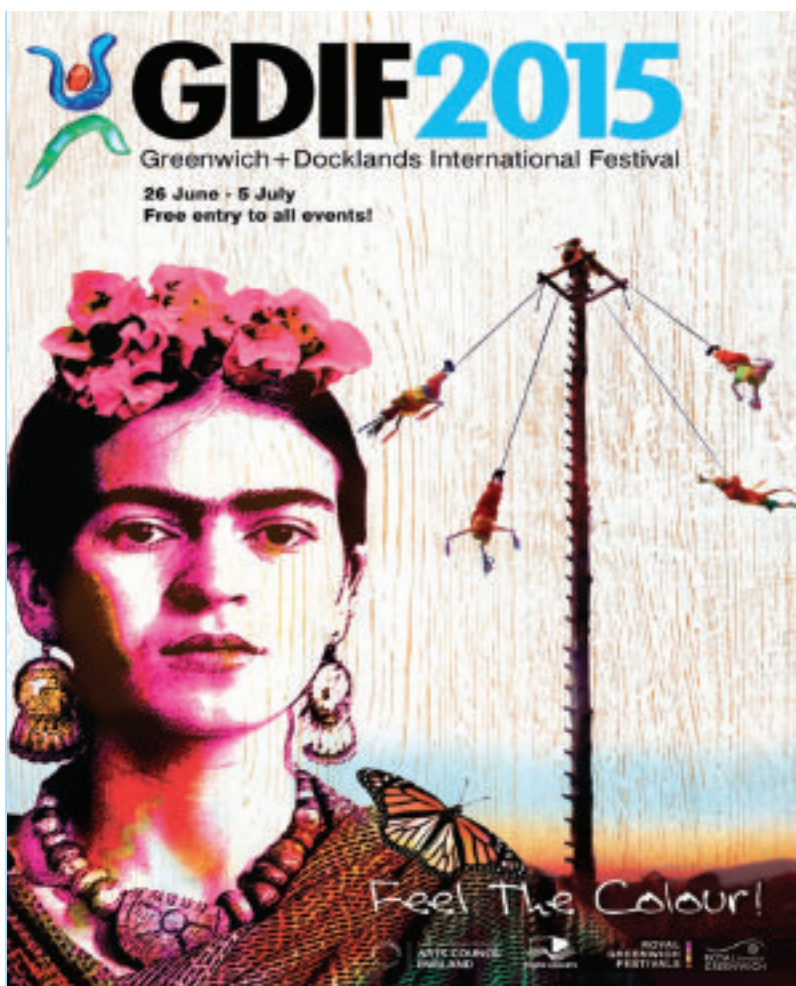

After an initial e-audit they received support with improving their status on search engines, making their website mobile friendly and improving customer relationship management systems.

SEE's e-business adviser Adiel Khan, who worked with the company to improve their website ranking on Google, said: "We also coached some of the staff in the use of MS Excel which has helped with internal reporting and communication. We also help set up remote working for senior employees which means they can work remotely from home on occasion which is a cost saving. The support is on-going and the plan is to help them set up further systems in the near future."

CONCENTRATING: last year's rehearsals for Rossini's The Adventures of Count Ory with Charlton Park Academy pupils who are also involved again this year.

Curtain up on children's opera show

CHILDREN and opera traditionally make for uncomfortable bedfellows. But next month might change this as rehearsals begin for a community opera full of children.

"Our aim is to make opera accessible for all, with children a particular focus", said Rose Ballantyne, community engagement officer at Blackheath Halls.

Pupils from Mulgrave Primary School, Woolwich, and Charlton Park Academy will join children from Lewisham primary schools in rehearsals for a summer production of Mozart's Idomeneo. Conductor Edward Gardner OBE, the Halls' opera patron, was unequivocal in his praise of this community project: "It's a rare opportunity to join in large scale music-making, which will help nurture a passion for music".

This fully-staged production, the ninth year that Blackheath Halls Opera has embarked upon such an ambitious and inclusive scheme, will include a cast of 200 local residents performing alongside not only students from Trinity Laban Conservatoire of Music and Dance but also professional soloists including Mark Wilde in the title role, Sam Furness as Idamante and Rebecca Bottone as the love-torn, Ilia. Performances take place on July 14, 15, 17 and 19 in the Great Hall at Blackheath Halls with James Hurley and Nicholas Jenkins directing. A classic Greek tragedy, set just after the fall of Troy, it's one of Mozart's more striking compositions.

Rehearsals are well underway with the children excited. "I am always blown away by the level of concentration from the young people during rehearsals. Opera really can be for people of all ages," Rose added brightly. Tenor Nicholas Sharratt, who last year performed at Blackheath Halls Opera couldn't speak highly enough of the project. "It's marvellous. Community opera simply doesn't get any better than this".

Opening night will also see secondary school students, under the guidance of creative director Joe Townsend, from Plumstead Manor and Bonus Pastor Catholic College, Bromley, together with students from Trinity Laban, perform an entirely new piece, itself inspired by the music and narrative of Idomeneo. The culmination of a 5-week composition project run by Trinity Laban Conservatoire, it's a fitting response to this community idea.

BARD TIMES: Greenwich & Lewisham Young People's Theatre (GLYPT) are bringing the bard to the royal borough this week, with the London premier of the Merely Players' Gender-Blind Repertory Shakespeare Shows. The players will perform Henry V and A Midsummer Night's Dream at the Tramshed on June 11, 12 and 13. The Merely Players are one of London's premier young Shakespeare companies. Known for stripped back Shakespeare, their latest touring shows will be removing the concept of gender in the upcoming performances. The double-bill sees both Shakespeare classics being performed by just five actors. A company of ten actors have rehearsed their characters in male-female pairs, with one person from each pair then performing on a given night. Ticket prices are £8 for adults and £5 for children and concessions. Visit www.glypt.co.uk or call 020 8854 1316.

GreenwichHomes

Royal Borough of Greenwich's Choice Based Lettings Scheme

Edition 446

BIDDING FOR PROPERTIES

People on the Housing register are able to bid for all properties, regardless of their banding. You must be eligible for the size of property and bids will be considered in the following order:

First Band A, followed by Band B both in priority date order.

Those in Band C will then be considered in registration date order.

Please note that there will still be some properties with age restrictions so only people of this age group can apply for these.

BAND

- A is for applicants in unsatisfactory housing, including people moving due to demolition and those underoccupying their homes.
- B is for applicants the Royal Borough of Greenwich must prioritise according to the law, particularly homeless people, and others with an urgent need to move for medical or welfare reasons.
- C is for all applicants on the housing register, including those that are in priority bands A and B.

How do I apply?

Get on the list

First, you've got to be on the housing waiting list to join the scheme. If you're not, register an application on line at www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk

Find your applicant number

It will be on the letter you've already had from the Royal Borough of Greenwich about the new scheme. You'll need that number and the reference number of the property you're after, which will be on the advert.

Pick out your ideal property

by looking in Greenwich Time or regularly checking the website:

www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk/homes

Click on your preference on the website. If you don't have a computer, you can always use one for free at either The Eltham or Woolwich Centre or a local library.

Apply in one of three ways

- Text bidding is now available and the number to use is 07786207913. For further information please see page 2, or
- Phone the 24-hour hotline 020 8921 4340. It's an automatic push-button system and calls will be charged at the normal local rate, or
- Via the Royal Borough of Greenwich's website www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk/homes

The next edition of GreenwichHomes will be available on Wednesday 17 June 2015 at midday. Closing date for all applications for this issue is midnight on Sunday 14 June 2015.

Small is beautiful the Under Occupation scheme

If you are living in a Council property that is too big for you, we can help you to move to somewhere smaller. The Council will pay your removal costs, and £350 for each bedroom gained.

To join the scheme you must be willing to move to a home with two bedrooms less than you have now:

- 3 bedroom to a 1 bedroom home
- 3 bedroom parlour/4 bedroom to a 1 or 2 bedroom home
- 5 bedroom to a 3 bedroom (or smaller) home

Greenwich nets gold

by Richard Morgan

IT takes practice, commitment and no little skill and sometimes it's awfully frustrating. But the hours of hard work have now finally paid off as the Royal Greenwich Angling Team hooked gold.

The Angling Finals of the Balfour Beatty London Youth Games, were held on May 24 in Essex.

With Croydon firm favourites and gold medalists for the last two years, the pressure was really on the Greenwich team but a combination of skill and dedication pulled them through to a surprise victory. 'I'm amazed and very surprised. I didn't even think we were going to get in the top four," team manager Damian Kostromski told Greenwich Time.

ANGLING FOR SUCCESS: the Greenwich team celebrate clinching gold in the Youth Games Angling Finals

Key to Greenwich's victory was consistency across the various lakes with Damian's younger sister, Plumstead-based junior Oliwia Kostromski, and seniors Lewis Addison and Charlie Cameron from Woolwich and Thamesmead respectively, all playing their parts to leave Croydon (Silver medalists) and Hounslow (Bronze), reeling.

Twelve year-old Oliwia was awarded a silver medal in the junior competition having landed a whopping 153 lbs of fish. The London Youth Games are the world's largest annual youth sports event, with 31 different sports and over one million participants since its inception back in 1977.
